

OCUL is pleased to announce MarkIt!, the new <odesi> student markup program. The program supports the hiring of students to mark up statistical datasets, using the DDI metadata standard, for inclusion in <odesi>. Continuing the distributed mark up model established during <odesi>'s project phase, this funding is intended to ensure that <odesi> remains current and that OCUL institutions continue to have opportunities to be involved with <odesi> through local skills training and content contributions.

In response to a call for applications circulated in early January, OCUL has selected the following institutions to participate in the program from January to April, 2010:

Carleton University
University of Guelph
University of Ottawa
University of Toronto

OCUL would like to congratulate the successful applicants. A new round of applications will take place in Spring 2010 to allocate funds for the 2010-11 fiscal year.

For more information on <odesi>, please visit <http://odesi.ca>.